Paid Driver Requested by Chief for Fire Truck

IN a communication signed by Fire Chief Robert G. Leidig, Assistant Chief Vincent A. Torras and the three captains, Fred Mylar, Paul Mercurio and William Askew, the fire department petitioned the city council to take under serious consideration the need for a paid engine operator to be on duty at all times. This would involve a reorganization of methods of operation in the volunteer fire department, and is greatly desired by its executives. According to the letter, having an engine operator on duty would eliminate delay in receiving, transmitting and responding to alarms of fire, and assure safer and more efficient operation and better care of apparatus and equipment. This step, the communication said, was recommended by the Board of Fire Underwriters 14 years ago, and failure of the city to take it has kept up the cost of insurance to property owners. The first five minutes at a fire tells the story, it was pointed out. While property values in the city have quadrupled, the volunteer and necessarily slow method of answering alarms still prevails.

Only Councilman Burge commented on the letter, and his words promised nothing. "When the fire department and police department can get together," he said, "so that the man on the job at the fire house can take police calls and relieve the wives of police officers from taking the calls—and cussings—as they are now doing, we may be able to do something about this."

Without further discussion the matter was referred to Fire Commissioner Rowntree.

— Three Arrests —

Quiet Reigns In Police Circles

The winter doldrums have settled down on Carmel's crime problem and the police department and the court of Police Judge George P. Ross are unusually quiet. Only three arrests have been made during the past week, all for minor traffic violations. Those arrested were A. G. Howell, Clifford H. Lawman, and Melvin B. Douglass. Lawman and Douglass each paid $5 fines, and Howell has not yet appeared.

Lack of activity has made the police department happy because Chief Norton and Officers Fraties, Guth and Wermuth are still attending the police school in Monterey. They are studying all types of police work with officers from each town in San Benito, Santa Cruz and Monterey counties. The Carmel men are taking turns attending school.

DEPUTY COLLECTOR OF INCOME TAXES COMING

For the convenience of Carmelites filing income tax returns, a deputy collector of internal revenue will be at the Bank of Carmel on Feb. 19 and 20, to answer questions and assist with the preparation of income tax returns. There is no charge for the service.

— When It Rains —

Drainage Problems Again

Carmel Has Its Own Little Flood Troubles

THIS is the rainy season, in case you hadn't noticed, and so this is the time for the city council's perennial, enforced consideration of Carmel's drainage problems. Fortified by letters and personal protests against lots turned into duck ponds because the city has traditionally regarded them as "natural water courses", garages isolated from streets by seas of mud or impassable canyons, business properties inundated because of faulty drainage, the council at its meeting Wednesday evening talked in such large terms as "storm sewer" and "city engineer", neither of which Carmel has, and both of which, or whom, come to seem highly desirable at this time of year.

A letter from Elizabeth McClung White on behalf of her clients, Dr. and Mrs. Pernier Mix, started the ball rolling. It told of a lot owned by the Mixes, at the corner of Third and Carpenter, which is at present under water, receiving the drainage from a wide area of land above. Unless the city can correct the situation or suggest some better alternative, Miss White wrote that it would be necessary for the property owners to build a cement wall along Carpenter at the property line, raising it above the road level, and working a hardship on traffic on that road.

The case of the Narvaez family also comes up for special consideration at this time of the year, as the winter floods course down their canyon and turn their home into a little Venice. A letter from Rene W. Moore, secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary repeated a question that has been heard before, what does the council feel to be its responsibility in this matter? During the summer the situation is worse, the letter said, as reports from a government bacteriologist indicate that the water, always present in the canyon, is polluted by drainage from cesspools at the upper end of the canyon. The winter flow, if considerably wetter, at least dilutes the pollution. It was brought out in discussion that Mrs. Narvaez has been offered an exchange of property, and the help of citizens in moving her house bodily to dryer land. The project is still in the stage of negotiation, however.

Robert Stanton paid his annual visit to the council, calling its attention, as he does each year at this time, to the flow of waters from the street onto the Young property at Ocean and Monte Verde. He asked, as usual, what the council proposes to do to correct the situation. Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Burt spoke feelingly of the situation affecting their property on Santa Fe; an area of sticky gumbo, part of the roadway, between the center oiled strip and their garage.

As these and other problems—top surfacing of unimproved streets annually washed into the ocean, deep holes washed in steep roads and canyons where curbs should be—are too complicated to be solved by the street department unaided, Street Commissioner Thoburn asked for authorization to employ County Engineer H. F. Cozzens, indicating that a day's consultation would be sufficient. He was empowered to do so.

Latham Quits Firehouse Post

In a letter read at the city council meeting Wednesday evening Milton Latham tendered his resignation as architect over-seeing construction of the city firehouse. The letter expressed regret at the necessity for this action which was taken, according to Latham, "for the reason that I have been unable to discharge my duties in the manner I would like, due to unfortunate differences of opinion and conflicts as to authority with certain representatives of your honorable body." The council accepted the resignation without comment.

One of the large real estate transactions of the week, announced by the firm of Conlon & Thorn, who handled the transaction, was the sale of four lots at the corner of Junipero and Mountain View, by Mrs. Maud I. Hogle to Malcolm Macbeth. This is the triangular piece at the north end of block 88; 200 feet on the east side of Junipero, south of Mountain View. Mr. Macbeth plans to build, but has not announced definite plans.

January Building Up

Construction $10,000 Over Same Month Year Ago

DESPITE a month in which weather conditions were anything but favorable for building, new building started here during January was $10,000 in excess of that begun in January of 1936, the records of City Inspector B. W. Adams show. Twelve building permits were issued during the month, for a total of $26,357; well over the monthly average of $21,000 for last year.

Six of these permits were in the four-figure class, representing construction of new houses; the other six were for additions and alterations.

Biggest permit of the month was taken out by Mrs. Ida M. Theurer, who is building a two-story frame and rustic house on Carmel between Twelfth and Thirteenth, to cost about $5700. Ernest Bixler is the contractor. Also listed at $5700 is the house being built by Bixler for Mrs. R. S. French, on Monte Verde between Tenth and Eleventh; a two-story frame and stucco residence.

Hugh Comstock is building for Ross C. Miller a five-room cottage and garage, to cost about $5000, on Lincoln between Twelfth and Thirteenth. Also being built by Comstock is a two-story frame residence for Gussie Meyer, to cost $4950, on Carmelo between Twelfth and Thirteenth. On Lincoln between Eleventh and Twelfth John Williams is constructing a one-story cottage for Miss Alma Edler, to cost about $2347. A cottage for Marguerite Abbott is being built by M. J. Murphy Inc., at Santa Rita and Fifth, the cost about $1500.

One of the month's permits was for the addition at the postoffice building, of which E. H. Ewig is owner and Murphy was the builder. It has a galvanized iron exterior and composition roof, and cost $285.

Among the smaller projects was a storage shed for Keith Evans, at Sixth and Junipero; a frame garage for the F. C. Price estate, at Fifth and Santa Fe; a tool shed for William S. Noyes on Santa Rita near Ocean; additions to existing structures owned by Carlton R. Wilson on Santa Fe between Second and Third; the addition of a bedroom on the L. Passadori house on Santa Fe near First.

Minges' Grocery Sold to McIndoe

Announced this week was a change of ownership of the Carmel Grocery, on Dolores, formerly owned by Benjamin F. Minges, now the property of Fred McIndoe. On Feb. 1, the day the papers were signed, sealed and delivered, Mr. Minges also celebrated his 14th anniversary of entering the grocery business in Carmel. Mr. McIndoe, who was to have taken over the store that day, is ill with the "flu", and until he is able to return to work, Mr. Minges is staying on at the store. E. D. Shepherd will be "Mac's" assistant in the new venture.

The Minges are uncertain as to their future plans. "About the only way a business man can get a vacation," said Mr. Minges, "is to sell his business."

Miss Janet Prentiss and Mrs. Matie Coppuck have returned after spending several days in San Francisco.

Another Zoning Problem

Service Station Seeks Structural Changes

ANOTHER knotty point in the city zoning ordinance was encountered jointly by the city council and M. J. Murphy Inc., at the council meeting Wednesday evening, when a letter from E. H. Chew, manager of San Carlos Motor Service company, requested permission to make certain changes in the physical structure of this Murphy property, which, it was pointed out by City Attorney Argyll Campbell, would change its status under the zoning law from service station to public garage.

Mr. Chew supplemented the letter with personal explanation. The request was for permission to build a temporary structure, an addition to the San Carlos building, about 16 by 40 feet, as a storage shed for automobiles. Since taking over the Studebaker agency, Mr. Chew said, available space is filled with new cars and there is no room for used cars being reconditioned. The addition, he said, would be of galvanized iron.

Permission of adjacent property owners is required before either service stations or garages can be built here, and the original permit under which the San Carlos structure was built at the corner of Seventh and San Carlos, was for a service station. To change the status to that of a public garage, involving storage of cars, it would again be necessary to secure signatures of property owners within a radius of 400 feet and go through the formality of a public hearing. Mr. Campbell explained. City Inspector B. W. Adams also volunteered the information that "minimum construction" for such a structure which must be fire proof, would be reinforced concrete. There was also the point of what was meant by a temporary structure; Mr. Chew mentioned three years, but a search of the zoning ordinance revealed that five months is the longest time permitted for a temporary building. The discussion dissolved in a general air of bewilderment, and neither the council nor Mr. Chew seemed to see just how the situation might be handled. No action was taken.

Boy Scout Week Program Planned

Boy Scouts of the Monterey bay area will participate in the celebration of the 27th anniversary of the founding of their movement during Boy Scout Week, Feb. 7 to 13. Local activities will be a part of a nationwide celebration, of which the outstanding event will be a talk by President Roosevelt broadcast on the coast at 2:30 Monday afternoon. Scout Sunday will be observed Sunday, with Scouts attending the church of their faith. School celebrations will be held Tuesday and anniversary hikes and Lincoln's birthday ceremonies are set for Friday.

Youthful Racketeer Swindles Householders

Carmelites were warned this week to avoid having their small change neatly netted in by a young man who has developed an ingenious scheme for making money. Four complaints were made to the police, all telling virtually the same story. The youth, estimated to be between 19 and 23 years of age, dark and probably of Mexican or Spanish extraction, offers to sell wood to householders at a price considerably below the market, saying that his truck is out of gas and he must have money immediately. In at least four instances the householders advanced sums ranging from 50 cents to $1, as a down payment for the wood, which was to be delivered as soon as the young man had secured the gas. As the hours and the days passed without a sign of either the youth or the wood, complaints to the police resulted.

SON FOR SHANNONS

A son, Franklin Edward, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Shannon of Pacific Grove, Thursday, Jan. 21. Mrs. Shannon is the daughter of Mrs. Florence Levitt of Carmel.

Pacific Grove

HAROLD MONSON, president of the Monterey section of the Latter Day Saints' church, has recently completed his two years' mission on the peninsula and will return to Salt Lake City, Utah, soon. His fellow missionaries and church friends gave him a farewell party Tuesday evening at the missionary headquarters on Pine avenue. An enjoyable feature of the evening was the presentation of stunts by members of each family attending. Some sang, some danced, some did tricks, and everyone had an amusing time. Mrs. William Walker, president of the relief society was in charge of the affair.

In keeping with his other scholastic triumphs, Richard Draper, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draper, has been selected to be an assistant in research in sociology at the Connecticut State College for the next semester and perhaps for the summer also. Mr. Draper, who has been doing post-graduate work at the College of Pacific, left Sunday for Connecticut where he will also complete his studies in order that he may receive his A B degree from the College of Pacific in June.

Influenza Keeps Many at Home

During the past week influenza has laid so many Carmelites low that these still on their feet were congratulating each other and knocking on wood. In most cases the illness was uncomfortable rather than serious, but the number of those confined to their beds seemed to be greater than at any previous time this winter, or last winter.

After a stiff bout with the prevalent ailment, Arthur Shand tottered out into the sunshine Wednesday, but reported that Mrs. Shand was ill. Byington Ford reappeared at his office for a short time that day, looking pale around the gills, after an uncomfortable siege of it. Councilwoman Clara Kellogg, of the city's official family, was on the sick list, as were Chief of Police Robert Norton and Officer Earl Wermuth. Miss Ella Kellogg was also reported ill. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Coates were both ill, as was the McGrury family; J. B. Mrs. and Ellen Pearl. Mrs. George B. Jordan was hospitalized; Fred McIndoe was ill at home, and R. M. Fortier was unable to report at the drug store. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Masten were on the sick list, and Alfred Wheldon was another sufferer. Dr. E. H. Kehr was also laid up.

LA COLLECTA CLUB

La Collecta club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Albee. The program consisted of a piano solo by Mrs. Albee and a reading by Mrs. D. E. Nixon. The birthdays of Mrs. Albee and Mrs. William Chappell were celebrated during the social hour.

RAINFALL FOR WEEK

Rainfall during the past week has brought the total for the season to 13.81, against 9.51 for this period last year. Daily readings were as follows: Friday, .33; Saturday, 1.10; Sunday, .12; Tuesday, .56.

Council Opens Fan Mail

Diversion of Heavy Trucks Requested

FOR the first time in many a moon only three councilmen sat down at the deliberative board in the city hall Wednesday evening, constituting a bare quorum. Mayor Smith, Councilmen Burge and Rowntree responded to roll call, but Councilman Thoburn arrived before the business of the evening was completed. Councilwoman Kellogg was absent because of illness.

An unusually heavy budget of mail was encountered by the official board, which took considerable time but resulted in little action. Consideration was given to a letter signed by a group of San Antonio street property owners, asking if heavy trucks now using that street could not be diverted to some less traveled way, and complaining of the danger caused by the high rate of speed of these trucks.

The matter was not unknown to the council, and it was brought out in discussion that the trucks regularly using San Antonio are bound from the sand pits in the Drive to the highway and Carmel valley. Owner of the fleet had explained to the mayor that by thus avoiding the steep Ocean avenue grade, he cut down his operating costs one-third. He had promised, however, to warn his drivers to be careful about speed.

While recognizing that San Antonio is a residential street and that heavy trucking is scarcely in keeping with its character, the council agreed that it also has an obligation to the state in this matter. Money from the state gasoline tax fund has been used to oil the street, with the understanding that it is a thoroughfare connecting with main highways—the only class of streets for which the state will allocate gas tax money. An attempt by the council to divert traffic away from this street might constitute a breach of faith with the state, it was pointed out. One alternative was suggested, which, however, might be distasteful to residents. That was to put up enough stop signs on San Antonio to check the speed of the trucks and raise operating costs to approximately the same level as if the trucks went up the hill. But there was no definite action.

A letter from Bernard Rowntree insurance agent, was read, requesting refund of the $12 business license paid last July, on the grounds that an attempt to collect a license from an insurance agent is counter to the state constitution. City Attorney Argyll Campbell said that he had received from a deputy attorney general an informal opinion which would sustain Mr. Rowntree's contention but that he wished to go into the matter further.

Mrs. George Graft requested trimming or removal of a cypress tree on city property across Scenic from her house, on the grounds that it obstructs view and has prevented the sale of her property. The council will investigate in a body. The city attorney pointed out that if the city grants this request, the work should be done at the expense of the property owner, as the city is not under obligation to preserve view.

Lester E. and Dorothy A. Swenson requested the transfer of a business license held in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reed, and called attention of the council to the change in the name of the business concerned, from Ye Teene Tid-bit Shoppe, to Lester's Cafe and Soda Fountain. This was referred to the license collector.

Two ordinances passed first reading, both authorizing the city to acquire new park property. The first involved the Forest Theater and represented one more technicality hurdled in the process of presenting this landmark to the city. The second was in reference to the gift of five lots and sale for $450 of five lots more in Block 12, by Forest Hill school to the city.

The next meeting of the council will be the evening of Feb. 17.

Schwabacher & Co. In New Quarters

To make room for the new tap-room now being built at Del Monte, Schwabacher & Co., San Francisco stock and bond brokers, have moved their quarters to a remodeled part of Del Monte's game room, where they will continue to give the same service to their local customers. According to Manager Howard C. Monroe, Carmel customers of Schwabacher & Co. may now telephone the office at Del Monte without paying an inter-city toll charge by calling Carmel 10681.

PINE NEEDLES

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Shea, who are spending the winter in the east, have arrived in New York after spending the month of January in Florida. They are staying at the St. Moritz. During the first part of the season they were in Terre Haute, Ind.

Mrs. A. C. Von Rath and her daughter, of New York City, have taken the Alberger house in Pebble Beach for three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wehrhane arrived last week from New York, and are occupying their suite at Pine Inn.

The Misses Hollowell of Chestnut Hill, Mass., are spending the month of February in Carmel.

Dr. Kalmen B. Sapero of Denver, Colo., father of assistant District Attorney Kalmen Sapero, is a guest at La Ribera.

Mrs. M. C. Sampson and Mrs. Theodore Sierka are spending several days in San Francisco.

Dr. Edwin Kehr is in Peninsula Community hospital suffering from an attack of influenza.

May Organize Class To Study Psychiatry

To make plans for further study along lines suggested by Dr. L. Cody Marsh during his recent series of psychiatric lectures here, an interested group met last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross C. Miller. Various expedients were suggested; including steps to organize a class either under the adult education department of Monterey Union high school or University of California Extension, but the one most favored by the group seemed to be an effort to secure Dr. Marsh himself to present a course. The various possibilities were to be investigated by committees, and will be reported back at a meeting to be held next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Miller home. It is open to all who are interested in the study.

BURGE BACK FROM TRIP

Councilman Joseph A. Burge has returned from a trip to Northern California and Southern Oregon, during which he encountered snow nine feet deep and highways glassy with 16 inches of ice. He is planning to go north again next week, as this sort of weather is just his dish.

All Quotas Disregarded

Carmel Sets Pace for Red Cross Relief Funds

REITERATING that the 11 million dollars originally set as a minimum was not sufficient to meet the needs of relief and rehabilitation of the mid-west flood area, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, national Red Cross chairman, today called upon all chapters, to disregard all quotas and to rush more funds quickly. The present crisis requires that every effort be made to raise as much money as possible.

Carmel, as always, has met the appeal from the stricken people of the great flood territory in a most commendable manner. Chairman C. W. Lee of Carmel Red Cross chapter reports that to date subscriptions have amounted to $2421 which is 18 times the original quota set and over four times the last quota on the $10,000,000 fund sought last week. The Bank of Carmel, the Monterey Trust and Savings Bank and Red Cross headquarters will continue to receive donations as long as the present need lasts.

The funds, as rapidly as received, are being forwarded to the Red Cross office at San Francisco in order that they may be made available to the sufferers of the disaster.

The pupils of Tularcitos school in Carmel Valley sent in five cents each. Junior Red Cross of Sunset school contributed $14.98 through Ann Whitman, chairman and Hugh Dormody, Jr. Children have been bringing in their pennies for the cause.

Contributions have been received from the Woman's Auxiliary of American Legion, from Carmel Woman's Club and from a collection taken at Mission Carmelo on Sunday. Forest Hill school and Douglas school have also been generous.

On Saturday, the local troop of Boy Scouts distributed special hand bills calling on citizens to continue their contributions.

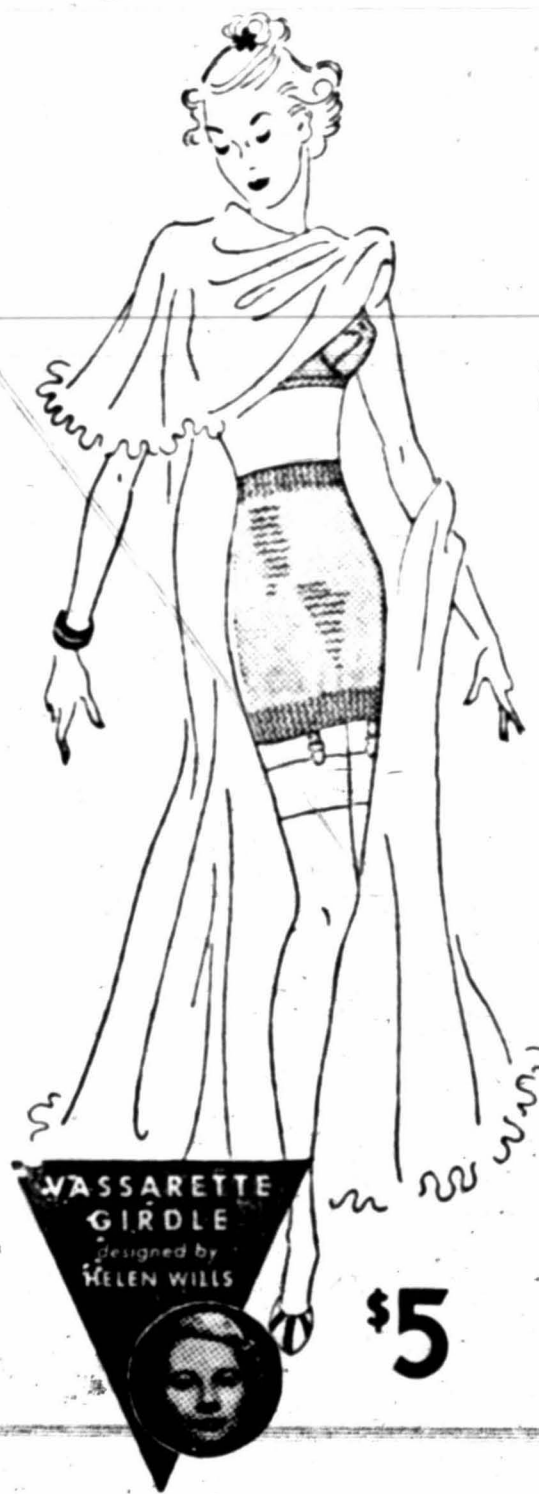

Under the supervision of Miss Clara G. Hinds, stations were established during Friday and Saturday in the banks, the post office and Carmel theater. Members of Red Cross who assisted in this work were: Mesdames L. Jorgenson, E. A. H. Watson, John Cocke, Walter Tuthill, A. E. Sparks, Janet Neikirk, A. F. Sullivan, Fenton Grigsby, Misses Elizabeth Allcott, Hester Schoeninger and Louise Grigsby.

On Wednesday afternoon, the first meeting of the new executive committee of Carmel chapter was held at headquarters to discuss plans for 1937. December and January have been heavy months for local relief and many families have been helped with food, fuel, nursing and clothing.

Visitors for a few days at La Playa are Mrs. W. R. Sloan and Mrs. C. R. St. Aubyn of San Francisco.

Legion Hears State Officer

Eugene D. Bennett Tells of Organization's Program

LEGIONNAIRES turned out en masse for the regular monthly meeting of Carmel Post No. 512, Monday night at the American Legion hall. Speaker of the evening was Eugene D. Bennett, prominent San Francisco lawyer and judge advocate of the state department of the legion, first state officer to visit the Carmel post. Corum Jackson was in charge of the meeting, and was responsible for the large attendance of out-of-town members.

Mr. Bennett spoke on the present and future programs of the legion and the great scope of work done by that organization. "It is amazing," he said, "how the American Legion, which represents a complete cross-section of the country, has stayed together through the many years since the world war. The Legion has kept alive the warmth and spirit of friendship. Because of the good you are doing, it is a privilege to belong to the legion. It is almost impossible to realize how much is being done to carry on the work we are doing."

Speaking on some of the present problems facing the legion, Mr. Bennett said that all members are pledged to help disabled veterans in every way possible. Other parts of the present program mentioned were the campaign for traffic safety and the child welfare program, which, he said, had helped more than 400,000 children during the last year. A part of the legion's child welfare program is the sponsoring by legion posts of Boy Scout troops. In connection with this, he said that the American Legion and the Boy Scouts should grow together, as the Scout movement is molding future citizens.

Some of the future plans touched upon by the speaker included the legion campaign to prepare for war in peace time, and to have adequate military and naval defenses. He stressed the fact that the legion does not wish armament because it wants another war, but that it does think a strong army and navy would discourage other nations with thoughts of war in their heads. He stated that many societies for peace and many disarmament groups numbered among their members persons who did not realize the importance of being prepared for peace by being prepared for war.

Mr. Bennett closed his talk by commending the local post on its growth and fine membership, and thanked Corum Jackson for giving him the opportunity of speaking in Carmel.

William Irvine, district commander, gave a short talk, after which he presented the local post with a citation from the Legion department of California, given in recognition of the good work Post 512 has done during the three years of its existence.

The meeting was adjourned by Commander James Thoburn, who invited those present to enjoy the refreshments prepared in their honor.

Women Voters to San Mateo Confab

A number of local members of the League of Women Voters are expecting to attend the Northern Conference to be held next Monday at the Benjamin Franklin hotel in San Mateo, beginning at 10:30. Chairmen of various state departments of the League will present the program, discussing such subjects as tax projects, food and drugs, news from Sacramento, the orphan aid bill, redrafting the civil service law, the social welfare bill, and neutrality bill. The speakers will be Mrs. Doris Hanley Jones, Mrs. Clarke Whittier, Mrs. Llewellyn Toland, Mrs. Charles deY. Elkus, Mrs. Harold Nachtrieb, Mrs. Louis Lundborg and Mrs. Malbone Graham.

After a 1 o'clock luncheon Mrs. Lundborg will present a model legislative interview, and the department chairmen will meet with local chairmen and other League members for round table discussion of department programs.

NO MEETING SCHEDULED FOR CURRENT EVENTS GROUP

As Mrs. Lawrence M. Knox, the chairman, will be in San Francisco next Wednesday and as no satisfactory meeting place could be arranged for earlier in the week, there will be no meeting of the Woman's club current events section next week. The next session will be held Wednesday, Feb. 24, when Mrs. Knox will take up the high points of Germany's development since the world war.

Musical Variety On Club Program

Violin and piano, a string quartet, and a baritone soloist composed the program for the Musical Art club monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the Van Ess-McGowan home in the country club. Valona Brewer, solo violinist, assisted by Marguerite McAdams at the piano, presented the third and fourth movements of the Caesar Franck sonata; the former mystical and sonorous; the latter brilliant and rhythmic. The duo then offered a group of lighter pieces by American composers: "In an Irish Jaunting Car", by Katherine Whitfield; "Indian Legend" by Maurice Berand; and "From the Cane Brake" by Gardner.

Dr. W. B. Williams, accompanied by Mrs. Williams, gave a group of three baritone solos: "Where My Caravan Has Rested" and "The Little Irish Girl", both by Lehr, and "Ballad of the Trees and the Master", by Chadwick.

A Haydn quartet was presented by Mrs. Brewer, Laura Dierssen, violin; Nancie Bragg, viola; and Mary Tweed, cello; and with the addition of Mrs. McAdams at the piano, the ensemble rendered a Schumann piano quintet.

The usual social hour and serving of refreshments concluded the evening.

New Tap-Room To Be Dedicated

Del Monte's spacious new tap-room will be dedicated at fitting ceremonies tomorrow night.

The room has been increased to twice its former size and now has two entrances from the inside of the hotel as well as folding doors which lead out to the sunken gardens.

The new bar runs between the two entrances and has a frontage of 50 feet. Concealed lighting behind it shows off the murals by Armin Hansen and Paul Whitman. These murals will in time cover the entire walls of the room.

Always a popular spot at Del Monte, the tap-room will now be more than ever the place where everyone meets.

MEETING OF SUNSET BOARD TRUSTEES POSTPONED

Reader's Reactions

Editor The Pine Cone:

I have just run across something that I think Carmel could use to excellent advantage, either by large signs on its main streets, or in some way brought to the attention of the inhabitants. It is a litany proposed by the Council for the Preservation of Rural England and goes as follows:

"From all destroyers of natural beauty in this parish and everywhere;
From all polluters of earth, air and water;
From all makers of visible abominations;
From jerry-builders, disfiguring advertisements, road-hogs and spreaders of litter;
From the villainies of the rapacious and the incompetencies of the stupid;
From the carelessness of individuals and the somnolence of local authorities;
From all foul smells, noises and sights—

Good Lord deliver us."

Don't you think this would be appropriate for a great many of our village streets, especially in the outskirts around the Mission?

Speaker to Talk On "Neutrality"

Another dinner meeting open to husbands and friends of members is to be held by the Monterey County League of Women Voters next Tuesday evening, Feb. 9, at Pine Inn. Dinner will be served at 6:30. The speaker is to be Dr. David Bryn-Jones, his subject, "Neutrality."

Dr. Bryn-Jones is professor of international relations at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., and is serving his fifth year as president of the Minneapolis Foreign Policy association. He has visited every country of Europe and is in touch with many political leaders, particularly those of Great Britain. Before taking his present position he had been minister of Trinity Baptist church, Minneapolis; professor of economics and political science, Carleton college; and lecturer in political science at the University of Wales.

Other items on the League program for this month are an all-day session of the government and foreign policy section, at the home of Mrs. Russell Scott in Salinas Feb. 16; the monthly board meeting in Monterey on Feb. 17; and a membership and guest tea at Pine Inn the afternoon of Feb. 24.

D. C. Andre Buys Beauty Shop Here

The Bellas Artes beauty studio, which has been operated for several years by Eunice Lambert, is now under the management of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Andre, who purchased it from Miss Lambert early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre have come to Carmel from New York, bringing with them a thorough and complete knowledge of beauty work. Mr. Andre was last with Sak's Fifth Avenue, where he was well known for his skill and original ideas. He is a specialist in hair designing, new styles in hair dressing, contour, hair cutting and permanent waving. He is also a scalp specialist, prescribing proper treatment for different types of scalps. One of the things for which he is famous is his ability to dress the hair to suit the individual, designing and shaping the coiffure so that it may best match the dress, mood and temperament of its owner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Owen will return from San Francisco tomorrow after visiting friends there since Wednesday.

Motorists Made Happy

Parking Troubles on Ocean Are Reduced Somewhat

OCEAN avenue, under the careful attention of Street Superintendent William Askew and members of the street department, has had a good deal of its face lifted during the last two weeks, and looks decidedly better for it. Motorists are happier because their cars will no longer be marred, and Carmelites who protest every improvement in the streets are surprised and happy that their worst fears have not been realized, and that the avenue really does look presentable.

Last week the department finished its work on the parking area in the center of the street between Lincoln and Dolores, and drivers were testing the new surface by Wednesday noon. Sunken boards, used to mark off parking spaces came to light several days afterward, and Ocean avenue parkers were treated to their first taste of organized parking on the main street. The boards were used instead of painted lines because the oiled dirt surface would not hold paint.

Begun at the end of the week was work of landscaping of the center strip between Mission and Junipero. While there will be no parking there, three paths have been cut across and many new bushes and flowers will be planted. Passersby for several days thought the men were clearing the way for more parking spaces, but there will never be parking in that block.

If the load of wood delivered to the city hall last Thursday is any criterion, there will be many heated council sessions during the next few months, and the city fathers will be assured of warm offices. An entire truckload was put in the wood store-room of the city hall.

Work was started Monday morning on the second section of parking space on Ocean avenue. Rocks have been hauled out and the same double line of stones, fastened together with cement, will be installed between Lincoln and Monte Verde. When that block is finished, there will be only the block between Dolores and San Carlos to do before the entire business section of Ocean will be completely renovated.

PIGEON MOVES LIKE TURTLE

A Belgian homing pigeon liberated for a race from Girilambone to Lithgow, in Australia, on Oct. 5, 1928, arrived home on July 16, 1936. The day it was set free, a storm broke and that was the last heard of the bird until it arrived home. It was identified by the registered band on its leg.

Judge Charles Clark Dies

Prominent Attorney Passes at Age of 87

A FAMILIAR and respected figure passed from the Carmel scene last Friday, with the death of Judge Charles Clark, at the age of 87 years. He was the descendant of two illustrious southern families who contributed much to the upbuilding of their section of the country, and his death closed an honored career in the practice of law. Until the day before his death, Judge Clark continued active in his profession.

By Carmel residents who knew him well he was respected as a man of brilliant and unusual attainments. He was an indefatigable reader, who not only remembered but brilliantly synthesized what he found in books, so that conversation with him was a privilege and an educational experience. As an alert student of current affairs he often commented upon parallels in history to the present social, political and economic upheavals. He was an ardent life-long Democrat, and took an active part in the last presidential election campaign as a firm supporter of President Roosevelt.

Judge Clark was born in Natchez, Miss., Nov. 20, 1849. Law was a hereditary profession in his family, and both his father and an uncle practiced at the bar. After completing his early schooling in Mississippi, he studied law in New Orleans, then entered the office of his uncle. He became an authority on the old French civil law of Louisiana. While practicing in New Orleans, he lived part of the time in the picturesque village of Past Christian, Miss. His father's law office, in St. Joseph, La., was just across the river from the old plantation home of the Clark family.

In 1873 the young lawyer resolved to seek his fortune in California, establishing himself in San Francisco. In 1875 he was admitted to the bar in this state, and so had more than 60 years of continuous practice to his credit. He was a member of the Bohemian club, and a familiar of many of the illustrious figures of that day. After 10 years in San Francisco he went to San Jose, where he was an honored and active figure for more than 40 years. His standing was such that he acted as coach and preliminary examiner to young aspirants applying for admission to the bar, and Argyll Campbell was one of many who passed the stiff hurdle of Judge Clark's exhaustive examination.

The Clark home was established in Carmel before Judge Clark gave up his practice in San Jose, and for a number of years he commuted weekly. For the past ten years he had

Sunset Girl Students Out for Basketball

Seventh and eighth grade girls of Sunset school turned out this week to the number of 35 or 40, for basketball practice. They are being coached by Miss Helen Newmark, office secretary at the school. For the present they will learn the fundamentals of the game, during play periods and after school, and later teams will be organized for an intramural series. Jacqueline Klein is manager for the eighth grade girls, and Marilyn Strasburger for the seventh grade.

The paternal ancestor of Judge Clark came to the United States from England in pre-revolutionary times, and his mother's forebears, bearing the name of Nutt, came to the new world in 1640, with the Washingtons and Lees. The Clarks settled in Maryland, the Nutts in Virginia. Judge Clark's maternal grandfather, Dr. Rush Nutt, a scientist, has been called the father of the cotton industry in America, as he developed the strains which proved adaptable to cultivation in the south. Judge Clark was the namesake of his father's elder brother, General Charles Clark, who fought at the side of Jefferson Davis in the war of 1846, General Davis commanding the First Mississippi Regiment, General Clark the Second. The two families were intimate throughout the antebellum years, and afterwards. General Clark received from the hands of Jefferson Davis, then president of the Confederate States, the commission which placed him in command of a division. Wounded at the battle of Baton Rouge, Gen. Clark was elected governor of Mississippi in 1863, and was governor of that state when Lee surrendered.

Among Judge Clark's treasured possessions was a letter from Jefferson Davis, written Jan. 1, 1886, conveying "grateful acknowledgements to your wife and yourself for the compliment conferred upon me in giving my name to your son"—Jefferson Davis Clark, born Aug. 4, 1885, in San Jose. The letter continued:

"I knew your uncle, General Clark, intimately, and held him in the highest regard and esteem. Through both your family and that of his mother the boy has heroic blood, and the patriotism which sacrifices itself to country must be his by inheritance."

A friendly note from Mrs. Jefferson Davis was included with that of the former confederate president. "Please say to Mrs. Clark," the note read, "that I am a kind of connection, as a member of my family is married to one of Genl. Clark's sons. So I shall claim a right to know about little Jeff from time to time."

With the blood of soldiers in his veins, Judge Clark carried himself straight and soldierly to the end. His shoulders were unbowed, his hand was steady. His immaculate suit of black, straight-brimmed black hat, and short white beard, he was a figure to be remarked.

Death came peacefully at 10:30 last Friday morning. Funeral services were held at the family home on Scenic Drive, Sunday afternoon, with Rev. Austin B. Chinn officiating. Paul's Mortuary removed the remains to Santa Cruz for cremation. The ashes will be conveyed back to the old family home at Rodney, Miss., for interment in the family burial grounds, Laurel Hill, once part of an extensive estate.

Judge Clark is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma Fowler Clark and his daughter, Miss Margaret Nutt Clark, both residing here, and by three sons: Charles Edgar Clark of Memphis, Tenn.; Benjamin Palmer Clark of Austin, Texas; and Jefferson Davis Clark of Dallas, Texas. There are two granddaughters and four grandsons.

Carmelites at Kuster Opening

In the audience at the opening of Edward Kuster's new Golden Bough Playhouse in San Francisco last week were several Carmelites: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Townsend, Tilly Polak, Dorothy Ledyard, Laura Dierssen, and Mrs. Katherine Kirk. They brought back most promising reports, commenting particularly on the charm of the place; an old church which has been remodeled and redecorated, all-white and simple in motif. It seats 220. The Kusters served coffee and cake in the attractive upstairs foyer during intermission, and an exhibit of the gesso portraits of Mary Young-Hunter was an additional attraction.

Baldwin McGaw and Emma Knox presented the opening performance; their arrangement of "Victoria Regina", which was particularly well liked during their summer season here, and which they are now doing better than ever; superbly, indeed, it was reported, after nine performances in which to perfect their handling of this fine play.

Ancient Fashions Paraded for Bridge Guests

MORE than one hundred matrons and misses of the peninsula attended a charming and most effectively arranged bridge tea and show of heirloom costumes given last Saturday afternoon at Holman's solarium by the peninsula branch of A. A. U. W. Twenty-five tables were set for bridge during the early part of the afternoon, and a dozen or more came at 4 for tea and to see the parade of ancient fashion.

Some of Monterey's oldest and most distinguished homes had made their treasures available for this occasion, and a goodly sprinkling of the interesting and beautiful old things came from Carmel. No one would have believed that so many daughters and grand-daughters had cherished and preserved the wedding dress or the "going away" frock, or perhaps just the best gown that Mamma or Grandmother wore while paying calls in the '80's or before.

The oldest costume shown was a gown of Quaker grey, with the characteristic white cap, apron and neckerchief, dating back to 1700. There were at least a half-dozen costumes of the pre-Civil War period, and many of the 80's and 90's. It has become fashionable to believe that the modern maiden is built on Amazon proportions and that, either by lacing or through innate delicacy, the damsels of grandma's generation were uniformly wasp-waisted. But in several instances it was observed that the gowns were pinned over by a generous margin to make them fit the slender little models who wore them. And they don't even wear corsets, these modern girls!

In most cases the older the gowns were, the quainter and lovelier they were. Some of them were actually touching in their simple beauty of line and material, with the addition of that trace of nostalgia associated with a frock which has come out of the attic to remind us of some long-dead beauty it adorned; the scenes of gaiety and elegance it has graced.

There have been times when excessive ornamentation indicated a certain lack of taste—by modern standards—and the color combinations were not always happy. But after this comprehensive view of fashions of virtually the last hundred years one may say that only once have the styles been really God-awful, and that was in the period from 1925 to 1929. A few of these recent horrors were resurrected for the occasion, and they were without a trace of grace or loveliness or meaning. From shoulders to hips they hung like bags, then the brief skirts, ending either just above the knee, or just above the curve of the calf, chopping the figure in graceless segments, and without one beautiful line. Why did women ever let themselves be made into such figures of fun? Bustles and leg of mutton sleeves, in comparison, have at least a semblance of quaint beauty.

Many of the gowns had hats, parasols, gloves, little capes or coats of the same period to make a complete picture of a bygone day.

Miss Anne Norwood commented on the costumes as they passed, and gave interesting bits of history concerning many of them. Mrs. M. C. Holman played a soft accompaniment to the parade. There was a charming interlude when Marcia Frisbee, appropriately costumed, sang "The Second Minuet". Miss Josephine Culbertson, Miss Mary Louise Parsons, Mrs. Herbert Fairley, Mrs. Webster Street and Mrs. John Neil Kirk all sent things over to the exhibit from Carmel.

The tea was a benefit for the A. A. U. W.'s national fellowship fund. Among those present from Carmel were: Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. L. O. Kellogg, Mrs. K. Y. Saper, Mrs. W. B. Albertson, Mrs. Penton Grigsby, Miss Clara G. Hinds, Miss Ruth Huntington, Mrs. Herbert Fairley, Mrs. Herbert McGuckin, Miss Mary Louise Parsons, Miss Helen McLachlan, Miss Georgia Ranney, Miss Anne Wolcott, Mrs. Amelle Waldo, Mrs. Ross C. Miller, Mrs. Harry T. Raine, Mrs. William F. Gleeson and Mrs. Alice Josselyn.

Mrs. E. F. Curry and her family of Roseville, Oregon, arrived Wednesday to spend a few days at Pine Inn.

ENTERTAIN FOR NEW ALL SAINTS' RECTOR

IN March, when Rev. Austin B. Chinn retires as rector of All Saints' church, he will be succeeded by Rev. Carol J. Hulsewe of Paso Robles. It was announced this week by Bishop Edward L. Parsons of the Episcopal diocese of California. Mr. and Mrs. Hulsewe were guests of Dr. and Mrs. D. Charles Gardner on a recent week-end, and were introduced to many of their future parishioners at a tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn.

Rev. Hulsewe is a native of the Netherlands, and has been in California since 1909. He is a graduate of the Church Divinity School of the Pacific, and last year received a Bachelor of Divinity degree on a thesis, "The Influence of the Jewish Background on the Early Christian Liturgy."

His first charge was St. Francis church in San Francisco, which under his leadership developed from a church school unit of 24 children, meeting in the social hall of a private home, into the largest single unit church school of the Protestant Episcopal church on the Pacific Coast, with more than 500 pupils. He saw the church through the mission phase of organization to its present status of parish.

During Rev. Hulsewe's rectorship, two units of St. Francis church were built. Out of the total equipment and construction cost of $60,000, the indebtedness had been reduced to $15,000 when he left this church two years ago. The church building itself is one of the most picturesque in San Francisco.

Mr. Hulsewe resigned from St. Francis church due to a near breakdown caused by overwork, but has now fully recovered. For the past two years he has been in charge of the work of St. James Regional Parish in the upper Salinas valley, with Paso Robles as the center.

Mr. Hulsewe has been active in the work with the young people of the diocese. He is advisor of the di-cese department of Religious Education; to the executive council of the House of Young Churchmen; chairman of the provincial committee on work with young people, and one of the four advisors to the National Federation of Episcopal Young People, scheduled to have its next conference early in April at Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Hulsewe was very active in San Francisco in Girl Scout work, having been a member of the Executive Council and captain of three Girl Scout troops.

Sunset Student Body To Install Officers

New student body officers will be installed at an assembly to be held in Sunset auditorium at 1:15 today. The officers, elected last week are: Bill Coffin, president; Sean Flavin, vice president; Alice Vidoroni, secretary; and Irving Parker, business manager. European Experiences

Julian H. Alco Is League of Voters Speaker

At a dinner meeting of the Monterey County League of Women Voters, held at Pine Inn last Friday evening and attended by husbands and friends as well as League members, Julian H. Alco of San Francisco talked on European experiences and personalities, the fruits of 24,000 miles of 11 months' recent travel in 14 countries, and of a close perusal of John Gunther's "Inside Europe". To the writer of this remarkable volume he gave full credit for an unsurpassed analysis of the personalities of the dictators of Europe.

Mr. Alco had been scheduled to talk on juvenile problems, as understood by him through his years of experience as a prison director and his interest in penal problems, but changed the subject due to his intense interest in the European scene. He visited prisons wherever he could gain access to them, which, with his credentials, was not difficult—and so his talk differed from the customary travel talk in the slants it gave on European methods of dealing with delinquents. His speech hinged particularly on the dictators, because, he said, "they are playing a disturbing part in connection with delinquency."

A dictator, he said, is "profoundly neurotic"; projected to positions of power by the disturbed conditions following the war, the break down of authority and prevalence of crime. Once dictators were creators of new religions; today they are political. They are jealous of religion, said Mr. Alco, because "they regard the Almighty as a direct competitor."

Visiting Spain at a time of particular tension, just before the election which preceded the outburst of civil strife, Mr. Alco found it expedient to hang an American flag in the back of his car, and as no banner could be found in Madrid, he secured an American "Betsy Ross" to make him one. He exhibited it at the meeting—together with the banners of nations he visited—and a beautiful example of needlework it was, for all that it was a bit short of stars! Economic conditions were worse in Spain than anywhere else in Europe, he said, but the great woman's prison which he visited in Madrid excited his admiration as the best in the world. The women are allowed to have their small children with them, and are not removed for the birth of their babies, but though the Anglo-Saxon blanches at the thought of babies in prison, Mr. Alco explained that the fine nursery maintained there for the little tads actually provided them a far better environment than the homes they had come from.

Mr. Alco—and Mrs. Alco, who acted as his chauffeur, and incidentally, was also a guest at the League dinner—visited a great Italian prison, in a grim, 13th century fortress. There are few prisoners in evidence in Italy, he said; perhaps many of them have been sent to Abyssinia. The prisons of Spain were full, but of politicians rather than criminals.

The speaker found himself "unable to reconcile" himself to the French penal system. He told of the use of masks to conceal the identity of the prisoners one from the other; how they live, eat and work in their cells, compelled to maintain the rule of silence at all times, with only 45 minutes daily of recreation and exercise. Those who are able to work support themselves in prison, but for the incapacitated it is "just too bad." The government wastes no money on them.

England, Mr. Alco believes, does a better job on the rehabilitation of prisoners than does the United States. He told of the splendid vocational training given young offenders, so that when they are discharged they are in demand as workmen, rather than being suspect and shunned, as in this country. "Absence of prisoners" he described as the notable feature of most European penitentiaries. There are more felons in San Quentin, he said, than in all of England.

Judge Henry G. Jorgensen, present as a special guest, was requested to speak and responded by reading a letter recently from a young man whom he was obliged to sentence to San Quentin. It detailed the opportunities for education of which the prisoner has availed himself in the penitentiary. Neither Judge Jorgensen nor Mr. Alco, however, was able to speak very optimistically of the chances of this or any other prisoner to reestablish himself in civil life on emerging from prison.

The program was arranged by the government and child welfare department of the League, and its chairman, Mrs. J. P. Sandholdt, presided after the meeting was opened by Mrs. Carl Voss, president of the League. Mrs. Dorothy Green Chapman, legislative chairman, called attention to two pending food and drug bills, suggested that League members write for copies of them for study. Miss Orre Haseltine made a report on League publications. Miss Ruth Turner, also scheduled to appear as a speaker, was unable to be present.

Christian Science

"Spirit" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, February 7, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord" (II Cor. 3: 18). Other Bible citations will include: "For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Gal. 6: 8, 9).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Emerge gently from matter into Spirit. Think not to thwart the spiritual ultimate of all things, but come naturally into Spirit through better health and morals and as the result of spiritual growth" (p. 485).

"The Fool" Next Friday

George Marion Helps Whip Play Into Shape

GEORGE MARION, nationally known stage and screen actor, stage manager and playwright, in response to the urgent request of the director, Clay Otto, is taking an important part in the coaching and producing "The Fool", to be played by local talent at the Sunset school auditorium next Friday evening, Feb. 12 at 8:30.

More than 30 local amateurs, many of them familiar characters in Carmel theatrical activities, will have parts in this large undertaking.

Billie Shepherd, who starred in a dramatic class project "The Vallant", two weeks ago, as the warden, will take the leading role in the part of Dan Gilchrist—a young minister who cannot stay in the church because of his convictions.

In the order of their appearance, the following will have speaking roles: Myrtle Stoddard, Suzanne Hedger, Ethel Warren, Guy Koepp, Thelma B. Miller, Franklin Dixon, E. A. H. Watson, Elizabeth Todd, Ross C. Miller, Frank Townsend, Bill Shepherd, Arthur Hull, Jerome Chance, Harry Hedger, Ted Sierka, Irving Gunderson, Zahrah Lee Koepp, Relda Maddox, Agnes Baker, Edith Griffen, Annette Jacobson, Walter Tuthill, Harold Bragg, Frank Hefling. In addition to these there will be a large mob scene in the third act.

Having had no dramatic production as a community project since last summer's production of "Inchling", the Carmel public is responding enthusiastically to the advance sale of tickets. Many members and friends of the church are selling tickets and beginning next week a ticket booth will be located on Ocean avenue for late and forgetful purchasers.

Joan of Arc Depicted

Mrs. Margaret F. Grant Woman's Club Speaker

By THELMA B. MILLER

PICTORIAL words, infused with her own vital absorption in her subject, served Mrs. Margaret F. Grant in her creation of another living character in the series which she has from time to time given to members of the Woman's club. In her talk on Joan of Arc Monday afternoon at Pine Inn, following the club's midwinter luncheon, it was perhaps less the Maid herself than her setting, in medieval France that the speaker strove particularly to recreate. She was successful in this attempt to an extent almost uncanny. From wide reading Mrs. Grant culled new facets to the whole absorbing story of the peasant girl who inspired the leaders of France to a realistic effort to throw off the English yoke. Mrs. Grant's own dramatic personality and the brilliance with which she synthesizes the material of history found in the substance of this story inspiration for new interpretative heights.

"One of the greatest figures in Christendom—that warrior saint, Joan of Arc!" the speaker began. Vividly, then, she assisted her hearers to recreate the setting—France of the 15th century—"whose every name is a lover's caress"—France, torn by war for 100 years, with the English in possession of many of her proudest cities—ruled by the mad king, Charles VI; his amazing consort, the wanton Isabella of Bavaria, who herself casts doubts on the legitimacy of her eldest son, the Dauphin who became Charles VII.

Then the speaker turned to the village of Domremy in the green Meuse valley, adjacent to that dark forest of great oaks, where lingered the intimation of old pagan rites. This was the setting for the birth of the peasant girl whose "voices" led her to "sweep armies off their feet, to enter the presence of kings and great clerics and dominate them, to make whole armies go to confession."

On the issue of Joan's mystic guidance Mrs. Grant was unequivocal. This girl "in no way unusual" until about her 12th year, then believed that she was visited by St. Margaret, St. Catherine and St. Gabriel, instructed by them to take up her incredible mission.

Not one of the many writers who have written of her sainthood, "mixed with blood and terror", have ever doubted that strange power, that other-worldliness, which set

Piscatorial Freak Found Upon Beach Identified as Squid

The giant Whooids, found on the beach two weeks ago, has finally been identified—not to the satisfaction of all—but still, identified. The thing was first noticed two Saturdays ago on the beach at the foot of Thirteenth. There were many saw it, but only one who had the presence of mind to take a picture of it. Miss Belle Heller, a visitor from Beverly Hills, presented The Pine Cone with a camera study, and many are the would-be fish experts who have come in during the last two weeks to identify it. One finally did. Francis Lloyd dropped into the office and identified it as a giant squid.

her apart, Mrs. Grant declared. "What those voices were, God alone knows," said she. "But that they were direct objective experience, rather than subjective, not the most worldly skeptic who has written of her has ever doubted. Through the ages have emerged certain characters, through the will of God or some strange power we do not understand, who have been marked out for a special receptivity."

The statue of the Maid in Orleans was used by Mrs. Grant as the basis of a physical description—a remarkable face looks from the stone, eyes wide apart and slightly full, as so often is the case with mystics; evidences of compact physical strength which enabled her to perform feats which would have taxed a strong man.

The speaker followed the steps by which the girl obeyed the behest of her voices and which led her eventually into the presence of the Dauphin, whom she instinctively called forward from his inconspicuous place among his courtiers. She undertook her mission under a certain compulsion of haste, for she knew that her time was limited. It was not as a military leader, but as an inspirational force that she went among the soldiers of France, ultimately to be convicted of crimes which no longer exist, on evidence which no longer signifies—such as her wearing of gray worsted pantaloons, black soldier's doublet and short-clipped hair; expedients which in view of the troubled times, were no more than wise.

Armed by her sense of divine inspiration this peasant girl "rated" captains, kings and clerics as though they were school boys, Mrs. Grant told. The magic power of her words recreated the siege of Orleans, ending when that strange figure, accoutred in armour and mounted upon her white horse, rode into the city. Then came the "military mistake" of not proceeding immediately to Paris, and eventually the disaster which resulted in her capture, after intimates of the Dauphin had undermined his confidence in her. She had outstayed her usefulness.

Mrs. Grant followed the Maid through the torments of her captivity; her incredible effort to escape through a leap from a 60-foot tower, in which, miraculously, she suffered no serious injury. And at last, the speaker stood with Joan of Arc, too vividly for comfort, upon the very fagots which snuffed out her life.

No one who heard her could doubt the validity of Mrs. Grant's own experience; that she had walked for a while in medieval France, and had heard, perhaps, a whisper from those same voices which commanded the peasant maid. An understanding of mystic experience, as well as scholarly research, contributed to her feeling for the incidents which made Joan of Arc, "the greatest warrior-saint in Christendom!"

Mrs. George B. Jordan is reported recovering after undergoing a severe attack of pneumonia. She is convalescing at Monterey hospital.

Women at Festive Board

Hundred Attend Club Luncheon

MEMBERS and guests of the Woman's club to the number of nearly 100 lunched pleasantly in the diningrooms of Pine Inn Monday noon preceding the monthly program which was presented afterward by Mrs. Margaret F. Grant. Mrs. W. E. Heathorne and Mrs. Joseph G. Hooper who with charm and efficiency guide the social phases of the club activity, arranged the luncheon and seated the club women in congenial groups, at tables for six and eight.

Presiding as hostesses at these tables were Mrs. Fenton Grigsby, Miss Flora Hartwell, Mrs. James K. Lynch, Mrs. Harry S. Nye, Mrs. Alfred Wheldon, Mrs. Calvert Meade, Mrs. E. J. Sherwin, Mrs. John Jordan, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Heathorne, Ms. Clara L. Beller, Miss Nora Harneden, Mrs. J. H. Payne, Mrs. Edda Heath Pappel and Mrs. Homer S. Bodley.

During the business meeting which intervened between the luncheon and program. Mrs. Nye, the club president, called attention to the rapidly growing membership, so that although the year books are just out and were distributed to members at the end of last week, there are five new members whose names did not appear, as they have joined since the membership list was compiled.

It was announced that the bird study group has deferred further meetings until the first Tuesday in March, as the weather has interfered with several attempted meetings. The monthly meeting of the art section will be held next Thursday afternoon, Feb. 11, at 2 o'clock at the art gallery, with Miss Celia Seymour, the chairman, and Miss Mary Scovel, Carmel, artist, presenting the program.

Among those at the luncheon tables, in addition to the hostesses, were the following: Mesdames: J. E. Ainsworth, J. M. Albee, Helen Ware Burt, J. A. Bernard, F. L. Butterfield, G. F. Woman's Club Section Brushes Up On Reading

SEVERAL short and informal book reviews were given by members of the Woman's club book section at its regular fortnightly meeting Wednesday morning at Pine Inn. The form of the program proved popular, and as there was not sufficient time to call upon all of those who had prepared reviews, a similar program, by request, will be arranged for later in the season.

Mrs. Ross C. Miller, section chairman, discussed briefly two widely contrasted volumes of feminine memoirs, "Life Was Like That", by Mary Doyle, and the Comptess de Chambrun's (Clara Longworth) "Shadows Like Myself". Neither figure is significant historically, but each knew the trick of presenting entertainingly and significantly, the flavor of her times and environment. Mary Doyle, a girl from Irish Harlem, with inexhaustible energy and ambition, managed to scramble, via the newsstand of the Waldorf-Astoria, to a situation which gave her a first-hand acquaintance with many of the picturesque figures of pre-war New York. Apex of her career was a position as sleuthing, crusading reporter on the old Evening World.

Clara Longworth, a flower of one of the fine old Cincinnati families, made a brilliant international marriage, came to have a sympathetic understanding of French life, made herself an authority on Shakespeare, via a doctorate at the Sorbonne, commented wisely and wittily on the scenes, in various milieus, which passed before her eyes.

Mrs. H. S. Nye contributed an analytical and appreciative survey of Willa Cather's "Not Under Forty", a short collection of essays which will, the reviewer assured her hearers, interest those under 40, despite the title. Willa Cather's keen perception of literary figures who have influenced her, manages to give also a clear picture of Willa Cather herself, and the fine, artistic standards which have moulded her own writings. She feels keenly about "the novel as art" rather than for entertainment values only; thinks that the judgment of "great" is passed too lightly.

At Filmarte

Mrs. James K. Lynch called attention of section members to a new addition to the club circulating library, feeling that they will find it of interest. The book discussed was "The Street of the Fishing Cat", a translation from the Hungarian, giving an entertaining picture of a Hungarian family transplanted to Paris; the characters "presenting themselves" rather than being analyzed by the author, and infusing the reader with a sense of their individual and group integrity.

A portrait of a spiritually strong figure, a woman moulded by an exciting adventure into a blade of fine steel, is presented in Marguerite Harrison's "There's Always Tomorrow", according to Miss Flora Hartwell, who presented the flavor of this volume in a few words.

The next program, Wednesday morning, Feb. 17, will be given by Mrs. John S. Mather; a review of a new novel, "Honorable Estate", by Vera Brittain.

Monterey Artist Wins Silver Cup

By the vote of patrons of Carmel theater, a silver loving-cup was given to Evelyn McCormick, Monterey artist, last Friday evening at the theater, as the culmination of an exhibit of paintings which has been on display in the foyer of the theater. Frederic Burt officiated as master of ceremonies when the decision was announced. He was assisted by J. Shelburn Robison and Manager L. J. Lyons of the theater.

Miss McCormick's winning painting was an oil study of the old customs house in Monterey. It received 1243 votes, deposited in a ballot box in the theater foyer during recent weeks. Miss Celia B. Seymour's portrait of a dashing Spanish gentleman placed second, with 1224 votes. An oil by Charles Bradford Hudson, "Sunset", received 1210 votes; and paintings by M. De Neale Morgan and Homer Levinson each received 1203 votes.

LAST WINTER

WAS LIKE THIS —

To the weather man, the months of January and February represent a series of cold waves. To most of us, all of winter is cold whether the temperature is 26 degrees or 42 degrees. But inside Gas Heated homes there were no cold waves—no shivers.

Gas heating equipment that requires no attention and no regulation, kept hundreds of thousands of Northern California homes right in the comfort zone. Fuel was always on hand—plenty of it. Heat came pouring out at the just comfortably right temperature.

There is no other form of heating that gives such a completely carefree comfort as Gas Heating. Gas Heating is also economical heat for gas heating rates are down. A known-cost gas heating estimate for your home will place you under no obligation. Telephone today and say, "I want a gas heating estimate for my home."

CHATS ABOUT YOUR GARDEN

By E. FREDERICK SMITH

The seed, selected wisely, plump, and smooth, And glossy, ne commits to pots of size Diminutive, well filled with well prepared And fruitful soil, that has been treasured long. Then rise the tender germs, upstarting quick And spreading wide their spongy lobes, at first Pale, wan, and livid, but assuming soon, If fanned by balmy and nutritious air, Strained through the friendly mats, a vivid green, Two leaves produced, two rough indented leaves.

William Cowper thus points to the magic of growing plants from seed. And I pass this on at this time as being particularly applicable in the present crisis resulting from the devastating freeze—or rather freezes.

Your nurseryman has no doubt suffered as severe a loss as you have and it will unquestionably take him months and months to produce a small fraction of the material his trade will demand. Consequently, to prescribe an emergency remedy for that pernicious, perennial malady known as "gardenitis" I suggest seeds; and lots of them to fill in the gaps in an otherwise well ordered garden, now laid waste.

There's just a more-than-slight possibility that when once you begin to dabble with seeds you will open up a new phase of adventure that you never before realized was within your reach. It has long been my contention that the professional grower of plants really enjoys most the part he plays in creating a growing thing. Of course, yours is the privilege to see the plant come into fruition, but you have missed the one phase in the cycle that would bring you more directly face-to-face with one of life's greatest mysteries.

To the uninitiated the suggestion to plant seeds may imply the acquisition of a formidable array of pots, flats, labels, fertilizers, sprays, sprinkling cans and like gadgets (not even mentioning a greenhouse). Do not become dismayed, however, by the lack of these appurtenances; I grant they are useful—some even essential, but you can always add to your equipment once you find the need. The first step, however is to "wisely select your seed" and this is best accomplished by studying your seed catalogs. And herein enters an element that is definitely a part of the "cure"; a seed catalog is to tomorrow's garden what the travel folder is to tomorrow's trip abroad. Certainly one would not embark on an extended tour by buying a ticket at random. Neither should you plant seed without an objective. So consult your seed catalogs.

Next in importance to seed, according to Cowper's formula (singularly, this is still a good rule, a century and a half later) is "well prepared and fruitful soil." This can be prepared by mixing equal parts of good top soil, leafmold and peat moss, being sure to remove the coarser particles. For containers one-pound coffee cans or shallow wooden packing boxes will do, but they must have holes in the bottom for drainage. Fill loosely to the top, sprinkle on the seed, cover thinly with fine sand and press firmly with a board or small can. Now comes the step that probably is responsible for half the losses with seedlings—watering. The very best way is to sub-irrigate by setting the box or can into a larger pan partly filled with water and allowing the moisture to seep into the seed pan from below. If watering from above it is better to cut small pieces of burlap the size of the container; sprinkle water on this and allow it to percolate through the soil. Be careful to remove this when the seedlings start to pop through.

Now stand by for the birds—birds and seeds are like cats and canaries: there must be a barrier.

To many of you who are already raising your own seedlings, this will seem very elemental, indeed. However, if one reader enrolls in the ranks of amateur propagators I shall count the time well spent, for I know that person will have an entirely new garden perspective—will have a deep-down feeling that the garden is more essentially a part of one's own self.

The editor has suggested that I invite questions concerning garden problems; this I gladly do. Please address to me, in care of The Pine Cone.

Jack Goodmon Returning

Norris d'Amron Bringing Concert Troupe Feb. 14

SINCE leaving here about a year ago, Jack Goodmon and Norris d'Amron, whom Carmelites will remember as having conducted a dance studio here for a year and making themselves very generally liked in the process, have been devoting themselves to research, rehearsal, public appearances, and to building up a whole troupe of entertainers with whom they are returning for a concert at Sunset Auditorium the evening of Feb. 14. Goodmon is the dancer, d'Amron is his manager, and with them are the French opera star, Suzanne Torres, and a well-known Mexican dancer, Sergio Franco. They are all to appear at the Oakland Auditorium Feb. 18. Later they are to appear in San Francisco and Los Angeles, and have a season booked at the National Theatre in Mexico City.

The concert promises to be one of unusual interest, combining dances by Goodmon and Franco, solo and duo, with groups of songs by Mlle. Torres. She is described as "combining a delicate, cameo-like beauty with dignity of bearing, making at once a statuesque and graceful figure on the stage. She has a voice of great range, with the fine middle register so vital to the singing of French music." Mlle. Torres is a native of Paris, received her artistic training there, and made her American debut in 1920. She has appeared in concerts in this country, and recently returned from a South American tour during which she appeared with the opera company maintained by the government of Chile.

Franco is particularly noted for his creation of Aztec and Mayan dances, which he has performed with great success and official recognition in his own country, Mexico, and in the three Americas. His performance at the National Theatre in Mexico

City last year was one of five sponsored by the Mexican government. It was declared to be authentic to the last detail; percussion music, choreography, feather capes, headdresses, masks.

Goodmon gave one dance concert during his residence here, in October, 1935, with great success. For three seasons he was premier dancer for the Belcher ballets in the Hollywood Bowl, and has appeared as premier dancer for many other productions in Los Angeles. He and Franco have appeared in concert together this season in San Francisco and San Jose, with the assistance of Gladys Steele, whose programs of character songs are well-known here.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS OF SERVICE

With this issue, The Pine Cone observes its 22nd birthday. On Feb. 3, 1915, Vol. 1, No. 1, first saw the light of day. That little first volume is open on our desk as we write; a tiny, fragile volume of yellowed pages, standing proudly at the head of the column of bound files, which contain the history of Carmel from 1915 to the end of 1936. Twenty-four books of it; the first volume 14 inches high and nine inches wide, and less than half an inch thick. There are 24 volumes because by 1934 the volumes had become so thick and bulky that for ease in handling The Pine Cone is now sent to be bound twice a year. The book for the last six months of 1936 is just the size and weight of the book representing the whole year of 1926.

Like steps of stairs those volumes grow, becoming, after the first four years, gradually taller, wider and thicker. It is a graph of the healthiest kind of growth; gradual, but steady. Right up to the present moment, for a check of the records for last month's business shows that more people paid for subscriptions, both renewals and new ones, and more people bought Pine Cones from the children on the street and from the newstands than during any previous January in the paper's history. January is the quietest month in Carmel's year, yet The Pine Cone received more unsolicited new subscriptions last month than any month since last August, which is the busiest month in Carmel's year.

The increase in the number of readers of The Pine Cone indicates the growth of the village, just as the increase in the number of telephone subscribers does. New residents visit the P. G. and E. office, the water company office and the telephone office, then subscribe for The Pine Cone, and they are ready to set up housekeeping!

In The Pine Cone's subscription files are the names of many Carmelites who have read the paper continuously ever since the first issue came off Will Overstreet's little old hand press on Feb. 3, 1915. Such readers, who renew their subscriptions automatically, year after year, with only the reminder of the annual bill, constitute the life-blood of the paper. They are tolerant people, not disturbed if occasionally they find that their favorite newspaper does not see eye to eye with them on political or local issues. They are quick to give us credit for the fair presentation of honest opinion, and nothing has more warmed the cockles of the editorial heart than the frequent tribute, during the past two and a half years of the present editorship, "I can't always agree with you, but I do appreciate the fairness of your attitude."

Each year when we celebrate our birthday in these editorial columns, it is the custom to renew our pledge of faith with the community which has so long kept faith with us. It is with a sense of deep gratitude and responsibility that we herewith make our promise. We will continue to do the best we can, according to our ability and our lights. We can't please everybody—not all the time. We will continue to cultivate an open mind, to do as good a job of reporting as the Lord will let us, to examine both sides of controversial issues and to speak the truth fearlessly if, and when, we can determine wherein lies that elusive quality of truth. Carmel is a complex and various community, but insofar as we are able, we will make this a paper for all of Carmel; sketching a faithful and accurate picture of its multitudinous activities and personalities. So, if you will bear with us, tolerant of our manifold and all too human frailties—here we go for another year!

Virginia man picked a chicken in 40 seconds. Carmelite says he prides himself on a slightly better record, made at the beach last summer.

HERE'S LOOKING AT YOU

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

YOU know that little nozzle that is to be attached to a certain make of vacuum cleaner, and the literature coming with it, telling how you can brush your dogs and cats with it? Well, that's all right, provided the dogs and cats will cooperate, but for the most part animals seem to be suspicious of the contraption. They flee shrieking if you approach them with it, and seem to have an idea that you have murder in your heart, rather than benevolence and sanitation.

HOWEVER, out of a menagerie of six dogs and cats, I have found one cat who not only likes being vacuumed, but insists on having his Saturday morning grooming when the machine comes out. When the floor is being cleaned he sits down in front of the nozzle, pats it, and tries to get his nose under it. The only thing to do is to stop and put on the little brush for cats and dogs, and give him a good going over. He purrs and preens and arches his back, and turns over so his ticklish tummy can be brushed too. He seems to regard it as a highly luxurious form of massage, and how his black fur shines when the job is finished! So far as he is concerned it never is finished, and he'll take the treatment indefinitely.

IN VAIN it is pointed out to the other cats and the two dogs how clean and fluffy Felix is after his dry-cleaning, and how much wear and tear it saves his little pink tongue—that overworked member which serves the feline tribe for comb and brush and sponge. Actually, since he has adopted modern methods of grooming he spends far less time than his mother and brothers in that interminable one-neck-power laundry work.

"BUT NO," they say. "That's all right for him, but licking and scratching was good enough for our grandfather, licking and scratching is good enough for us. Away with your new-fangled contraption. We don't like the feeling of it, and anyway the noise scares us into fits. What were we given rough tongues for, anyway?"

So there is no accounting for the individual peculiarities of cats, any more than of people. Why should one cat, out of four, regard vacuum cleaning as a luxury, and the others as an invention of the devil?

AND that reminds me of a story I shall have to tell some time, about the mother instinct in cats. Most people think that all cats are just instinctively wonderful, devoted mothers, but actually they differ greatly, just as human mothers do. I once had a cat whose maternal instinct was so overdeveloped that she kidnapped all the small kittens in sight. Fortunately, she shared the feline nursery with another mother who was frivolous, or there might have been h— to pay. The frivolous mother was not only willing, but delighted, to have her own nest robbed, and the little silver mother dragged the black mother's kittens by the scruff of their little necks, to her own basket. This happened not just once, but with several litters. The black mother dropped in frequently, for a few minutes at a time to look the situation over and offer a little lackadaisical help with the squirming mass of kittens, but she never stayed long. People came from blocks around to see the strange family set-up; the two mothers with their indistinguishable families, and the silver mother definitely in charge of the whole menage.

ADVERTISING CARMEL

It was not a penny-wise policy but sound good sense that caused Carmel Business association to turn down that alluring invitation of Monterey's Chamber of Commerce to spend $150 for mention in a booklet which the Chamber of Commerce thinks is the right kind of advertising for the peninsula. Carmel has rejected this sort of proposition before, but Monterey keeps on hoping. As spokesmen for Monterey have admitted, Carmel's rejection of stereotyped, commercial advertising—the kind that is handed out at service stations—has in the past had a realistic commercial value. Once upon a time the best advertising man that Carmel has ever had ribbed up a mass meeting of protest against this very sort of advertising. The result was columns of free publicity in the press of the world. More people have been attracted to Carmel by newspaper stories than ever would answer the "Come to the Circle of Enchantment! Spend your money freely; we need it!" type of exhortation.

We might modestly point out that for 22 years The Carmel Pine Cone has been the medium by which Carmel has been widely and discreetly advertised. Nearly 15 years ago the writer of these lines was filled with a longing to see Carmel, and some day to live there, because of a few copies of The Pine Cone which chanced to come his way. The very lack of self-consciousness in Will Overstreet's Pine Cone gave the flavor of the village. No need to emblazon the slogan, "Carmel is different." It was quite obvious.

For 22 years The Pine Cone has followed traveling Carmelites all over the world. Not a week passes but someone tells us, "When I finish with my Pine Cone I always send it away"—to friends in the east, or friends in the middle west, or friends abroad." New residents of Carmel come in to subscribe for the paper, and often to tell us in what queer corner of the globe they first saw a copy of the paper, and were inspired with a desire to see the village it represented. We doubt if pamphlets handed out at service stations travel so far or are treated with such respect.

At the risk of underlining the obvious, we hint that if the merchants of Carmel want to spend money to advertise the town, the most effective way for them to do it is to support The Pine Cone, the traditional and official newspaper of the village. The paper does far more than to give them complete coverage in their own territory, a coverage which is valuable because it is accompanied by reader interest and the respect of the community for a community "institution". It carries the flavor of the village far and wide; it makes people curious to see Carmel, and it does not arouse their sales resistance by ballyhooing the charms of Carmel in such a way as to make them indistinguishable from the charms of Podunk.

If the merchants of Carmel still have a yen to spend an actual, concrete $150 for community advertising, they might devote a portion of it to the Bach festival, to a summer Forest Theater production, or underwrite a season of indoor drama. By means of such activities the village is advertised in all its essential flavor; the best possible type of visitors and residents—the only type we want—are attracted to the village. Carmel does not have to compete for "the tourist dollar", for it is unique. It would be a disastrous mistake to sink to competitive advertising methods, destroying something that has been 30 years a-building.

The average dream lasts about five seconds, which explains why we never get to spend that million left us in uncle's will.

"More people are hurt playing golf than in any other sport." And yet caddies will whistle.

Birney Adams Helps Will Overstreet at Christening

EACH year since 1915, on Feb. 3 has been retold the story of The Pine Cone's birthing, and this year we asked Birney W. Adams to tell how he officiated as midwife. Birney is one of the real old-timers—goes back to the George Sterling days of village picnics at the beach, those picnics which saw the spontaneous creation of the Abalone Song, and were the favorite form of recreation when the village was really small, and uncomplex.

As neighbors of the Overstreets, the Adams family sat in on many of the preliminary conferences which preceded Bill Overstreet's fantastic decision to start a paper—in a town having only a few hundred people. Bill bought his little handpress, and according to Birney, "a couple of hatfuls of type", and when the press arrived, Birney was on hand to help unload it, and to set it up in the store on Ocean avenue, which afterwards, for many years, harbored the Carmel Market (it was the Democratic headquarters during the recent campaign). The press wasn't such a big one, but the floor was pretty fragile, and before they dared start it running, Birney crawled under the building—a prevision of his later calling, seeking the elusive termite and evidences of too, too, flimsy construction—and shored it up. Birney says he was Pine Cone subscriber No. 1, cash on the line, and he has never missed an issue since the first one.

When the little press started running, with Bill Overstreet's foot providing the motive power, Birney Adams' sturdy thigh was the brake. When Bill yelled at him to stop the press, he just sidled into the fly-wheel and prayed that the contraption would stop before it burned a hole through his corduroys. It took four press runs to print that four-page paper, for the press only printed one page at a time. The first edition was between two and three hundred papers, and when the first one came, damp but complete, from the last run, Birney took possession of it and put it away, autographed by Will Overstreet, among his souvenirs. He had a feeling that it was a historic occasion.

Putting out The Pine Cone has always been a family affair. In a story Will Overstreet wrote for The Pine Cone two years ago, at the time of the 20th anniversary, he paid touching tribute to his late wife, Kathryn Overstreet, and to his daughter, Phyllis, now Mrs. De Witt Appleton, for their continuous encouragement and the realistic hard work they put in with him throughout the years he was daddy of The Pine Cone. Mr. Overstreet sold out to J. A. Easton, who brought Allen Griffin into the

Advance Suggestions In Spring Fashions

Of interest to style-conscious Carmel women is the return this week of Anna Katz, who has been in San Francisco attending many of the spring fashion shows being held there. She has returned with all sorts of new ideas, and for women who would dress distinctively and in the best of style, she gives these tips. "Don't buy too much beige! So much of it is being shown that it soon will have lost its individuality." Speaking of color and color combinations, Mrs. Katz has this word of advice to give: "Wear British tan accessories. British tan is excellent with green, but be sure the green is the same 'color-weight' as the tan." "All we need now," Mrs. Katz goes on to say, "is sunshine. The gorgeous spring things I have bought will start coming in on the 10th of the month, and I know every woman in Carmel will want to see them."—(Adv't).

Catholic Study Club Organized at Mission

For the purpose of developing among the parishioners a thorough understanding of Catholic doctrine and liturgy, a Catholic Study club has been organized at Carmel Mission, branch of a nation-wide organization. Mrs. Joseph G. Hooper is president; Miss Virginia Hale, secretary; and Mrs. Jane MacNeil, treasurer. Meetings are held on the first and third Friday evenings of each month, at 7:30 at Crespi hall. There will be forum meetings, with outside speakers from time to time, and non-Catholics are cordially invited to attend.

HUMANE SOCIETY TO MEET TOMORROW AFTERNOON

The February meeting of the Monterey County Humane Society will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the office of the city manager at the Civic Center, Monterey. This will be a joint session of board of directors, members and others interested, to consider important developments in improvements planned for the Humane Society.

Attend Annual Church Conclave

In San Francisco this week to attend the annual convention of the California diocese of the Episcopal church are Rev. and Mrs. Austin B. Chinn, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn, Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Wheeler, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mrs. Louise Ralston and Cooper Anderson. The convention was formally opened Tuesday morning with holy communion celebrated in Grace Cathedral, followed by an address by Bishop Edward L. Parsons. The rest of the day was to be devoted to business sessions and organization work. Simultaneously the 32nd convention of the House of Churchmen was discussing social service work, youth movements, and related activities.

Tuesday evening there was an Oxford Group meeting at Grace Cathedral and a dinner under the auspices of the Church League at Stewart Hotel. A feature of the Wednesday session was an address by Rev. Charles E. McAllister, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Evangelist, Spokane, Wash.

Ramon Novarro, famous motion picture actor, spent a few days here at the end of last week as a guest of Noel Sullivan.
